Weekly Account Status Update:

1. Overall Summary: Overall , this week for three accounts showed different and mixed reactions. While some accounts demonstrated healthy advertising performance and stable growth, recurring communication and reporting clarity issues appeared across multiple clients .I also noticed that operational effort is sometimes not fully visible from the client side, which may affect client confidence even when active optimization work is happening internally.
2. FreshBasket: FreshBasket continues to perform well overall, with ROAS remaining above target and the client appearing generally satisfied with account performance. However, the client expressed confusion regarding some reporting columns and requested additional clarification. This may indicate although the performance is strong , reporting communication can be simplified.
3. UrbanPulse: UrbanPulse remains the most challenging account this week. ROAS performance is currently below target, and the client appears to be losing confidence in the account's progress. A significant amount of operational time was spent on campaign optimization, listing improvements, and troubleshooting, but much of this effort may not be fully visible from the client perspective. The account may require stronger communication around ongoing optimization work, along with a clearer strategic recovery plan to rebuild client confidence.
4. NestWell: NestWell remains relatively stable overall, with no major performance concerns observed this week. However, similar to FreshBasket, the client requested clarification around reporting metrics and account data interpretation. An additional observation is that the brand already has a Flipkart presence but is currently not running advertisements there. This may represent a potential expansion opportunity if the brand decides to diversify marketplace growth beyond Amazon.
5. Cross-Account Observations: One recurring pattern across multiple accounts is client confusion around reporting and metric interpretation. This suggests that reporting systems may benefit from further simplification or standardization for non-technical stakeholders. Another important observation is that operational effort is not always directly visible to clients. In some cases, large amounts of optimization and troubleshooting work are happening internally, but clients may still perceive limited progress if outcomes are not communicated clearly.
